

The Pardee Periodical

Journal of Global Affairs

Spring 2017

CALL FOR PAPERS - SPRING 2017 EDITION

The Pardee Periodical Journal of Global Affairs is now accepting paper submissions for the spring 2017 print issue. The Editorial Board seeks original, thought-provoking research and policy papers, written for either a class or an independent project from across the disciplines relevant to the field of global affairs.

Authors must be MA or PhD candidates; recent graduates may submit papers within the same year of their graduation.

Deadline: February 7th 2017

Response time: 1-2 months from deadline

Selection process: All papers will be subject to a blind review process. Accepted papers are subject to editorial modification.

Submission Requirements:

-  Title page with the paper's title, a max-250 word abstract, a max 100-word author bio, a full word count, the degree the author is currently pursuing, and e-mail contact information.
-  Maximum length of 8000 words, including citations, bibliography, and abstract.
-  Submissions must conform to Chicago Manual of Style conventions, including footnotes and a bibliography.
-  Manuscripts must be in Times New Roman, double-spaced, with 1-inch margins.
-  Manuscripts should be submitted as a Microsoft word document (.doc or .docx) to pardeegradjournal@gmail.com with the following subject line:
"[Author Last Name, First Name], [Submission Title]"

The Pardee Periodical Journal of Global Affairs publishes original, thought-provoking work of graduate level scholars from across the disciplines with a central focus on global studies. Working in conjunction with faculty advisement, the editorial board is comprised of MA candidates at the Frederick S. Pardee School of Global Studies at Boston University. The board works to fulfill the Pardee School's motto of "Advancing Human Progress" by selecting those submissions that offer innovative perspectives on this vibrant and ever-changing field. These efforts reflect the Pardee Periodical's mission: to empower graduate students to inform and enhance the ongoing discourse in global studies by offering them a platform to publish and disseminate their academic work.

