SUBJECT: Request for Submissions of Recent Faculty Books and Creative Works

In addition to serving as an informational tool for the BU community, the Office of the Provost website provides an opportunity to highlight the outstanding work and accomplishments of our talented faculty. This is accomplished in part through the publications section of the website which chronicles the books and creative works produced by BU faculty.

Each new academic year, we invite faculty to submit updates to this section. While journal articles or periodicals are typically not included in this special section, we welcome other creative works to join the list of featured productions. These could include films, documentaries, special exhibitions, and published recordings. We ask that you please include as much information as possible with each submission (i.e., publisher/producer, date of publication, ISBN or cataloging number, web link where the work can be found or purchased), so we can accurately direct visitors to the work online. These should be newly published works (or works that we have missed in previous years), and submissions or questions should be e-mailed directly to our director of communications, David Lazar, at dlazar@bu.edu.

We look forward to regularly updating this content and want to thank you, once again, for continuing to help us showcase the vibrant intellectual life of Boston University by bringing recognition to the creative works of our accomplished faculty.
