

INNOVATION STARTS HERE.

IS THE MSMS RIGHT FOR YOU?

You are a recent college graduate or will be soon. You understand the importance of approaching issues from multiple perspectives and you want to make a real impact in your career. If your undergraduate degree is in a field other than business, you belong in the Master of Science in Management Studies (MSMS) program at Boston University Questrom School of Business.

The MSMS adds valuable business expertise to your undergraduate skill set—no matter your area of focus—and allows you to dive into the business side of things and pivot toward new career possibilities in only nine months.

Throughout the program, you'll work in teams to develop approaches to real-world challenges faced by project partners. You'll learn from experienced senior faculty and executive mentors while collaborating with teammates, taking risks, and receiving fast feedback. With the MSMS program, there's no shortage of industry experts to guide and mentor you along the way.

HOW IT WORKS

Over nine months, the MSMS will immerse you into real business scenarios where you'll immediately apply your learning. Class time is balanced with projects and teamwork, so you'll manage your time and approach each day like a job. It breaks you out of a typical class structure, so you learn more by doing with the support of senior faculty, classmates, and teammates. We put you at the center of the action, exposing you to industry experts to prepare you for what employers are seeking.

Each day will bring a variety of learning opportunities and project challenges. By the end of it, you'll be flexing your intellectual prowess on consulting projects. You'll bring out the best in your teammates. You'll react to the nuances of complex situations and develop approaches to solve complicated issues. Most of all, you'll inspire those around you. Get ready to define success in a whole new way.
