

As women in the world, we bring our family traditions into new countries, new cities, and new towns. We surround ourselves with ceremonies that remind us of our home countries.

As women in the world, we are surprised by what the world has to offer, and we struggle in a strange land with strange customs. But we remain spiritual through revitalizing practices that we carried in our hearts and in our suitcases.

As women in the world, we minister to those around us in a new context with a new understanding of what it means to be in mission. We carry our past with us as we embrace a future in the world.

As women in the world, we find ways to minister to people who at first appear nothing like us; we find ways to open our doors and make these strangers feel like family.

The Anna Howard Shaw Center invites you to join us for Women in the World 2007. We will be considering Christ's Word in the World: Immigration and Mission in Ministry. Come hear stories of women re-creating home in a place of worship. Come hear about global mission for a new century. Come learn about making the world our home.
