Potential Sources for Practicum Funding

These 3 sites provide lists of other sites to explore for global health opportunities for public health graduate students & others:

- American Academy of Family Physicians Foundation Global-Health Scholarships. Built for medical students; some opportunities for those in public health.

- Fogarty International Center List of Non-NIH graduate opportunities. Lists a variety of international grants and fellowships available to those in the field of global health research and in biomedical and behavioral research.

- US Dept of Education Alphabetical List of Exchange Programs

Fulbright is a possible way to get funding, but circumstances need to be right – it is a very competitive process. Students should work with BU Fulbright Office.

- Fulbright-Fogarty Fellowships in Public Health
- Fulbright-US-Scholar-Program
- Fulbright-US-Student-Program

Funded Internships & Fellowships with USAID

- Internships & Fellowships with USAID/STAR. STAR replaces Global Health Fellows II program as of June 30, 2019 (students should sign up for their list-serve). Sustaining Technical and Analytical Resources (STAR) is a five-year project of the Public Health Institute, supported by the United States Agency for International Development (USAID). Its goal is to strengthen global health professionals, organizations, and the practice of global health through:
  - A learning-centered Fellowship and Internship program
  - Capacity-building for host organizations
  - Knowledge-sharing collaborations between paired academic institutions

Specialized Research Funding

- CEESP [Cancer in Epidemiology: Education in Special Populations]. Students can apply for funding for cancer research field work, both global & domestic. The Program provides funding for students to travel and conduct mentored summer research internships in foreign countries and U.S. minority settings.

- AFAR (American Federation for Aging Research). AFAR’s Clarence Pearson Fellowship in Global Health and Aging. This fellowship supports a year-long research project on the student’s campus or beyond, as well as networking opportunities in NYC. May deadline for next academic year.

General Advice on Funding Overseas Opportunities

- How to Get Funding for Your Internship in Asia.

Boston University Funding

- Global Development Policy Center’s Summer in the Field Fellowship. Offers qualified Master’s and/or PhD students a stipend of up to $4000 to participate in unpaid internship opportunities and field research.

- BUSPH Practicum Scholar Program. Funds students through competitive application process who embark on unpaid summer practicums at nonprofits, NGOs, governmental and public health agencies dedicated to improving the health of domestic and global populations, with awards of $1000 +/-.

- Summer Foreign Language Area Studies Fellowship. Any BU student, undergraduate or graduate, who is a US citizen, can apply for a Summer Foreign Language Area Studies (FLAS) Fellowship to study an African language in the US.